Edward Norman is currently Music Director of St. George's Anglican Cathedral in Kingston, Ontario, having been appointed last September. He was born in the UK and studied with Harold Darke at the Royal College of Music, London, where he won the Haigh Prize for organ. Emigrating to Canada, he later studied with Hugh MacLean at UBC. For many years Ed was Music Director at St. John's Anglican Church, Shaughnessy, in Vancouver, was the organ instructor at UBC, and organist for the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra. He left Vancouver in 2001 to go to First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, PA where he was Music Director for four years. He has worked as a music-producer with CBC radio in Vancouver and is now - in addition to his cathedral duties - a freelance record-producer and engineer. He has frequently been heard as recitalist, accompanist and continuo player on CBC radio, and Canadian concert appearances have included the 2000 Vancouver International Festival and the 1999 RCCO Convention in Hamilton. More recent concert appearances have included Trinity Christian College, Chicago, Mount Royal College, Calgary, an inaugural recital in Vancouver on Christ Church Cathedral's new Kenneth Jones organ, and a concert at Fitzwillliam College, Cambridge University, England. In addition to extensive appearances in Canada, he has also performed in the UK, Poland and Germany, and made guest appearances with the YNSO in Tokyo in 2002 and 2004.
